PAUL J. RAINEY'S GREAT AFRICAN HUNT PICTURES

On Friday night, Feb. 27, the Paul J. Rainey Pictures, which are said to be the most wonderful moving pictures ever made, and which are acknowledged by many to be greater and more interesting than Lyman J. Howe's pictures, will be shown at the Grand Opera House, in this city, for one night only. These pictures were taken right in the jungles of Africa by Paul Rainey, chief photographer, and here you will see the most savage and ferocious of beasts, the lion, the tiger, the leopard, the hyena, and all other kinds of animals at the water hole. This view is said to be the most hazardous risk ever attempted by the moving picture man in order to take this particular scene. The fact that one of the Paul J. Rainey party will lecture with these pictures, explaining each scene and every detail, will make it worth while for every man, woman and child who can attend this performance to view these pictures Friday night. Mr. Rainey's party carry their own machine and curtain, as well as the lecturer, who traveled with the Rainey party in Africa while taking these pictures. Come early and get a good seat, as these pictures are the most wonderful in the world. One performance, at 8:15.

INTERURBAN CAR KILLS FOUR CATTLE AND INJURES ONE

The interurban car due in this city at six o'clock Tuesday evening ran into a bunch of cattle about three and one-half miles from Paris, in front of the residence of Mr. S. S. Ardery. Four of the number were killed and one was crippled.

The cattle had been sold to Hugh Ferguson by Jonas Well, of Lexington, and were being driven to the Ferguson farm on the Greenwich pike. One of the animals got under the car and was dragged a considerable distance along the track before the car could be brought to a stop. A colored driver narrowly escaped death when he tried to save the cattle. The car was only slightly damaged, and was able to proceed to Paris after a short delay.

Mrs. Horton was a devoted member of the Christian church. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Beall, with whom she made her home, and one son, who lives in Bourbon county. How to Detect the Alum Baking Powder

"Which are the alum baking powders; how can I avoid them unless they are named?" asks a housekeeper.

Here is one way: take the can of a low-priced powder in your hand and read the ingredient clause upon the back label. The law requires that if the powder contains alum that fact must be there stated. If you find one of the ingredients named alum, or sulphate of aluminum, you have found an alum baking powder.

There is another and a better way. You don't have to know the names of the alum powders. Use Royal Baking Powder only; that assures you a cream of tartar powder, and the purest and most healthful baking powder beyond question.
